An initiative for implementing a special course on sustainable building practices was taken up by the Associazione Crea-Arte-Acqua (ACRA), an association of industrial, research and educational institutions in the field of architecture, design, construction and environment. The project was successfully completed in 2005 and resulted in the publication of a practical guide to sustainable building. Today, ACRA is working on the implementation of a Green Courses Programme for architectural students. The special course will be adapted from the models used in the pre-graduate architecture course and will focus on sustainable building practices, energy efficiency, renewable energies, natural ventilation and ventilation techniques. A common course of about one week will be developed and used in a pilot experiment in the autumn of 2006. Only members of ACRA will be able to enrol.
